EDWARD G. LEVY (1898-1990)

Edward G. Levy was born in New Haven, Connecticut on October 21, 1898 and educated in the city's public schools. He received his LL.B. from Boston University in 1921 and joined his brother, Herman L. Levy, in his law practice in New Haven, specializing in theatrical law. Levy married Hortense Rosenblatt in 1926; their son Charles Joseph was born in 1935.

In May 1938, Levy was charged with participating in a conspiracy with 22 others, including the Mayor of Waterbury, to defraud that city of more than $1,000,000. He pled guilty and turned state's evidence; the New York Times reported on February 4, 1939 that Levy admitted under cross-examination that he had been expelled from Yale University for cheating and that he had worked as a lobbyist "for various interests" before becoming involved with the conspirators. After his cooperation, Levy received a sentence of one year in jail.

In his later years, Levy became known as a dime novel collector and historian, and he and his wife amassed substantial autograph collections as well, donating dime novels and manuscripts to several universities, including Harvard, New York University, and Yale. The couple maintained residences in Woodbridge, Connecticut, and Palm Beach, Florida, where they were members of the Palm Beach Country Club. Edward G. Levy died on January 15th, 1990.

Scope and Contents

The Edward G. and Hortense R. Levy Collection, Part I consists of several thousand clipped autographs, franked envelopes, autographed photographs, and autograph notes and letters by nineteenth century British notables. The majority of the items date from the last half of the nineteenth century and include autographs of members of the British royal family; hundreds of members of the nobility and gentry; politicians, especially members of Parliament; churchmen, including missionaries and members of the Anglican hierarchy; artists, authors, actors, and journalists; and military men, in particular holders of the Victoria Cross.

Collection Contents

Alphabetical Files, 1710-1955

21.07 linear feet (65 boxes)

Alphabetical Files contains several thousand autographs, alphabetically arranged by signer. The name forms used by the Levys are the forms included in this list. Generally, members of the nobility are referred to by their highest titles; married women are referred to by their married names; and actors are listed under their stage names, but there are exceptions. Many individuals are represented by more than one autograph. In these cases, there are no item counts, but the date span for the contents of the folder has been given.
