Biographical / Historical

Harry Gideon Wells, pathologist and immunologist, was born July 21, 1875 in New Haven, Connecticut and attended Hillhouse High School. The failure of his father's wholesale drug business led his family to move to Chicago in 1893, where his father opened a drugstore. Wells graduated from Sheffield Scientific School, Yale University, in 1895, where he studied physiological chemistry with Professors Russell Chittenden and Lafayette B. Mendel. He graduated from Rush Medical College in 1898 and received a PhD in Pathology at University of Chicago in 1903. He took a postgraduate year abroad in 1905. From 1901 to 1940, he was a member of the medical faculty of the University of Chicago and served as longtime chair of the department of pathology. He was an authority on the chemical aspects of pathology and immunology. His text, Chemical Pathology, went through several editions beginning in 1907. He also published books on the chemistry of tuberculosis and on the chemical aspects of immunology. He died in Chicago on April 26, 1943.

Scope and Contents

The collection includes materials written by Wells, including his typewritten autobiography with his pencil annotations, two student notebooks on physiological chemistry from the Sheffield Scientific School, 1894-1895, a pathology notebook of research conducted under Dr. Emil Abderhalden at the University of Berlin in 1905, and two notebooks containing drafts of papers from the 1930s. The autobiography includes chapters on his boyhood in New Haven, Hillhouse High School, Sheffield Scientific School, medical school, and his later research career as well as his hobby, fishing. Published materials include four volumes of reprints of his articles, three scrapbooks of his editorials and short pieces clipped from the Journal of the American Medical Association, two reunion volumes from the Sheffield Scientific School, and a folder of biographical material including a typewritten obituary by Ludwig Hektoen.

Arrangement

The collection is arranged in three series: I. Manuscripts, 1894-1930; II. Published papers, 1897-1935; and III. Biographical materials, 1927-1943.
