Biographical / Historical

Martha McPhee (born 1965) is an American novelist. She is the daughter of literary journalist John McPhee (born 1931) and his first wife, photographer Pryde Brown (born 1935). She is also the sister of novelist Jenny McPhee, photographer Laura McPhee, and architectural historian Sarah McPhee. Following Pryde Brown's marriage to psychologist Dan Sullivan in 1969, the McPhee children grew up on a farm outside of Princeton, New Jersey, with their younger half-sister, Joan Sullivan, and their stepfather's children from his first marriage.

McPhee graduated with a Bachelor of Arts from Bowdoin College in 1987 and received her Master of Fine Arts in Fiction from Columbia University in 1997. She received a National Endowment for the Arts grant to complete her first novel, Bright Angel Time (1997). Her second novel, Gorgeous Lies (2002), was a finalist for the National Book Award. Her other novels include L'America (2006), Dear Money (2010), and An Elegant Woman (2020). She has been a professor in the English Department at Hofstra University since 2002.

McPhee married poet and writer Mark Svenvold (born 1958) in 1996. The couple and their two children, Ana Livia Svenvold McPhee and Jasper Svenvold McPhee, live in New York City.

Collection Contents

Series I: Notebooks and Journals, 1972-2019

2.75 linear feet (7 boxes)

Series I contains 46 notebooks and journals kept by Martha McPhee.

The earliest journals contain school exercises and short stories. Beginning in 1980, journals document McPhee's travels in Europe, her friendship with Donatella "Dodi" Trotti, her relationship with her family, her interactions with boys, and her desire to write.

Journals kept in 1989 and onward document McPhee's application and subsequent enrollment in Columbia University's Master of Fine Arts Program in Fiction, life in New York City, the writing of her first novel Bright Angel Time, and her relationships with family, friends, and romantic partners. The journals also include notes for Gorgeous Lies (under working titles Quo Vadis and Farther India) and An Elegant Woman.

Journals taper off in the early 2000s and resume in 2016, when McPhee begins to adhere dried flowers, letters, photographs, clippings, and other ephemera to journal pages. The near-daily entries in these seven journals chronicle the writing and revision of An Elegant Woman, as well as McPhee's thoughts on motherhood and her relationship with her father. They also document her class instruction at Hofstra University, the renovation of her New York City apartment, her reaction to the 2016 presidential election, and work on a new novel, Scheherazade. These later journals contain family photographs of her children, Ana Livia Senvold McPhee and Jasper Senvold McPhee, as well as of her grandparents and great grandparents.

Series I is arranged chronologically.
