PAJ

In 1976 Bonnie Marranca and Gautam Dasgupta founded Performing Arts Journal. The journal was retitled to PAJ: A Journal of Performance and Art in the late 1990s and is commonly referred to as 'PAJ'. In 1979, Marranca and Dasgupta founded PAJ Publications, an Obie Award-winning publishing house. For over four decades, PAJ published original works of drama, prose, and critical commentary about the performing arts. As Marranca wrote in a January 1998 editorial, "Our aim has always been to dissolve the boundaries of artistic forms and forms of criticism... the great experiments and ideas of writers, painters, dancers, composers, filmmakers, and photographers were enlivened by their collaborations and explorations of different media in relation to each other and to the arts themselves." PAJ Publications held international recognition and influence in scholarship, teaching, and documentation of the performing arts.

PAJ: A Journal of Performance and Art was a triannual periodical which captured innovative work in theatre, performance art, dance, video, writing, technology, sound, and music. The journal aimed to collocate dialogue about live arts using a cross-genre and cross-generational approach. Issues included artists' writings, essays, interviews, plays, drawings, original works and coverage of performances, festivals, and books. Marranca and Dasgupta were co-publishers/editors of the press from 1976-2005. Marranca assumed the role of editor-in-chief and publisher from 2006-2024. The periodical was published by MIT Press Journals and was distributed worldwide to over 100 countries.

PAJ Publications began releasing books in 1979 and has published 160 titles in performance, drama, criticism, theatre history and more than 1,000 plays and performance texts. PAJ plays have been translated into over twenty languages.

Bonnie Marranca

Bonnie Marranca is the editor-in-chief of PAJ: A Journal of Performance and Art, and editor and publisher of PAJ Publications. She holds a B.A. in English from Montclair State College, an M.A. in theatre from Hunter College, and partially completed a Ph.D. in theatre at the Graduate Center of The City University of New York (CUNY). She withdrew from the program to start Performing Arts Journal, later renamed PAJ: A Journal of Performance and Art, with Gautam Dasgupta in 1976.

Marranca is also an author and scholar who has written five books of theatre criticism and edited fourteen collections of plays, essays, and interviews. Marranca is Professor Emerita of Theatre at The New School/Eugene Lang College for Liberal Arts, a Guggenheim Fellow, and Fulbright Senior Scholar. She taught at many universities domestic and abroad including Columbia University, Princeton University, New York University, Duke University, the University of California-San Diego, Free University (Berlin), Autonomous University/Institute for Theatre (Barcelona), Aarhus University (Denmark), and University of Rio de Janeiro (Brazil).

Scope and Contents

The collection contains two primary sections. The first focuses on the editorial processes related to the production of Performing Arts Journal/PAJ: A Journal of Performance and Art issues and PAJ Publications titles. The second section focuses on Bonnie Marranca's personal papers. As a co-founder and editor-in-chief of PAJ: A Journal of Performance and Art for over four decades, Marranca's papers are deeply inter-connected with her professional work including correspondence with notable artists, lecture notes, drafts of scholarly articles, recorded interviews, and a collection of print ephemera related to theatre and performing arts shows.

Arrangement

This collection is arranged into seven series: I. PAJ correspondence, 1971-2002. II. PAJ editorial files, 1951-2021. III. PAJ photographic subject files, 1971-2011. IV.
