CALL NUMBER: GEN MSS 475

CREATOR: Marinetti, F. T., 1876-1944

TITLE: Filippo Tommaso Marinetti "Libroni" scrapbooks on futurism slides

DATES: circa 1905-1944

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: 136 boxes (approximately 10,705 slides in 135 carousels and 1 microfilm)

LANGUAGE: The bulk of the materials are in Italian, with some items in English, Polish, Portuguese, Russian, Spanish, and Japanese.

SUMMARY: Filippo Tommaso Marinetti's seven "Libroni", or scrapbooks, were compiled by Marinetti between 1905 and 1944, the year of his death. Marinetti subscribed to multiple clipping services which allowed him to compile an almost exhaustive record of the Futurism movement and his part in it. The scrapbooks contained thousands of newspaper clippings, journal articles, cartoons, drawings, photographs, manuscript items and printed ephemera, which document Futurism, the Futurist movement, and the avant-garde. The collection consists of slides that were derived from a microfilm copy of the scrapbooks made in the mid-1970s. While the order of the slides likely corresponds to the order in the scrapbooks, there is no indication of where a scrapbook begins or ends.

Administrative Information

Immediate Source of Acquisition

Purchased from Jean-Pierre de Villers, 1999.

Custodial History

According to Jean-Pierre de Villers, the original scrapbooks were stored in La Banca del Santo Spirito in Rome between 1945 and 1975. In 1975 they were moved to Venice into the custody of Luce Marinetti-Barbi. Marinetti-Barbi had the scrapbooks photographed onto microfilm. The microfilm frames were then mounted onto slides. de Villers purchased the slides from Marinetti-Barbi in 1983 and sold them to the Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library in 1999. Six hundred and eighteen frames were damaged and sent by de Villers to a restoration company where they were cleaned and photographed. These remaining images were sent to the Library in 2005 under the original purchase agreement.

Conditions Governing Access

The materials are open for research.

The images were scanned by the Library at a high resolution to facilitate access. These images are the highest quality that is possible to recover from the slides. We therefore recommend researchers use the digital images rather than consulting the original slides.

Preferred Citation

Filippo Tommaso Marinetti "Libroni" scrapbooks on futurism slides. General Collection, Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library, Yale University.

Processing Information

The slides were acquired by the Library in 1999, along with a detailed listing by the seller of virtually every item depicted, however the listing contained some errors that library staff continue to correct. Some items lacked description, and the collection has image legibility and sequencing problems. For example, 94 carousel slots are empty, and their corresponding slide numbers are unused.

The microfilm and slides in box 136 did not come to the library with detailed description and have not been digitized.

This guide was derived from a csv extract of LadyBird, a Yale Library digital image database. The processor concatenated descriptions of multiple images from a slide to provide descriptions of each slide. Additionally, the processor combined descriptions of slides of multipage articles.

Existence and Location of Copies

The entire collection, with exception of the microfilm reel and two slides in box 136, has been digitized. ## Existence and Location of Originals

Location of original scrapbooks is unknown. Another copy of the slides is held by Getty Research Institute, Research Library.

Biographical / Historical

Scope and Contents

Filippo Tommaso Marinetti's seven "Libroni", or scrapbooks, were compiled by Marinetti between 1905 and 1944, the year of his death. Marinetti subscribed to multiple clipping services which allowed him to compile an almost exhaustive record of the Futurism movement and his part in it. The scrapbooks contained thousands of newspaper clippings, journal articles, cartoons, drawings, photographs, manuscript items and printed ephemera, which document Futurism, the Futurist movement, and the avant-garde. The collection consists of slides that were derived from a microfilm copy of the scrapbooks made in the mid-1970s. While the order of the slides likely corresponds to the order in the scrapbooks, there is no indication of where a scrapbook begins or ends.

The original libroni, whose location is unknown, measured over a meter in height and their contents were in rough chronological groupings. The slides sometimes capture an entire libroni page or one item on the page. The description includes, when known, author, title, source, date, and a bracketed number indicating slide number and part of the libroni page captured (1=top left, 2= top right, 3=center, 4=bottom left, and 5=bottom right).

Arrangement

Arranged by slide carousel and order number, which is presumably the order in which the original libroni were photographed. The original libroni were arranged in rough chronological order.
