Edward Lewis Wallant (1926-1962)

American novelist Edward Lewis Wallant was born on October 19, 1926, in New Haven, Connecticut, to Sol and Anna Mendel Wallant. Following service in the U.S. Navy, he was educated at the University of Connecticut, Pratt Institute, and the New School for Social Research. He had a successful career in advertising, as an art director, alongside his work as a writer. His first novel, The Human Season (1960), won the National Jewish Book Award; his second, The Pawnbroker (1961), was nominated for the National Book Award and adapted into a film starring Rod Steiger. Wallant was awarded a Guggenheim fellowship for 1962, and travelled to Europe. Shortly after his return, on December 6, 1962, he died suddenly of a stroke at the age of thirty-six. Two additional novels were published posthumously: The Tenants of Moonbloom (1963) and The Children at the Gate (1964).

Wallant married Joyce Fromkin in 1948. The couple had three children: Scott, Kim, and Leslie. At the time of Wallant's death the family was living in Norwalk, Connecticut.
