CALL NUMBER: MS 305

CREATOR: Johnson family

TITLE: Johnson family papers

DATES: 1631-2017

BULK DATES: 1631–1918

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: 31.42 linear feet (48 boxes)

LANGUAGE: English

SUMMARY: The papers consist of correspondence, papers, volumes, deeds, and other material documenting several generations of the Johnson family of Connecticut and New York. Samuel Johnson (1696-1772), William Samuel Johnson (1727-1819), William Samuel Johnson (1795-1883), and Samuel William Johnson (1828-1895) are prominent figures in the papers. The correspondence of William Livingston (1723-1790) and Noah Welles (1718-1776) is also arranged in the papers. In addition to extensive correspondence between Johnson family members, the papers contain material relating to Connecticut and New York politics in the colonial and Revolutionary War periods, and religion, land development, and Indian affairs in the nineteenth century. Additions to the papers include family correspondence, sketchbooks of Katharine Livingston Bayard Johnson, a diary and account books of Sarah Dwight Woolsey Johnson, photographs of New Haven, Yale University, Connecticut towns, and cemeteries in Connecticut and Massachusetts by Robert Bayard Severy; Livingston family genealogy, by Margaret S. Rutgers; multi-generational account book; and letters to Anna Muirson Johnson Bellamy after the death of her sister, Katharine Livingston Bayard Johnson. Also includes photographs of eighteenth-century documents related to William Samuel Johnson. The originals of these documents, all of which are in the public domain, were donated to Columbia University.

Biographical / Historical

Johnson, Samuel (1696-1772): Connecticut clergyman, and educator, first and founding president of the King's (later Columbia) College. Born in Guilford, Connecticut, entered Yale College in 1710. Graduated in 1714. Ordained a minister in 1720 in the Congregational church, beginning his parish work in West Haven, Connecticut. Resigned from that position in 1723, and was ordained a minister of the Episcopal Church during the sojourn in Great Britain, where he was awarded the degree of MA from both Oxford and Cambridge. Following his return, became the rector of the church in Stratford, Connecticut. During the residence at Stratford, Johnson wrote several treatises, published by Benjamin Franklin and used as textbooks at the University of Pennsylvania. In 1743 he was awarded the degree of D. D. from Oxford. In 1754 moved to New York City at the solicitation of the trustees of the new King's College to become the president of the school. Resigned in 1763, returning to his old parish as rector in 1764. Died at Stratford, Connecticut.

Johnson, William Samuel (1727-1819): Connecticut statesman, attorney, judge and educator. First president of the Columbia College (now University) in New York, New York. Born in Stratford, Connecticut, of Samuel Johnson and his mother, daughter of Col. Richard Floyd. Graduated from Yale with the A.B. in 1744 at the age of seventeen. Following his graduation, pursued theological studies as a "scholar of the house" under Dean Berkeley, after which decided to become a lawyer, enrolling in the course of studies for MA degree at Harvard College on May 30, 1747. He attained a high standing in his profession as he was always secured as counsel in both religious controversies and juridical disputes of the Connecticut colony, for which he was called "the father of the bar in Connecticut."

Representative to Connecticut's general assembly from Stratford (elected in 1761, 1765, and 1772), and from the state of Connecticut to the Stamp Act Congress in 1765. Selected as a special envoy to Great Britain in 1766 representing the colony's land title claims. In 1772, one of the judges of the superior court of Connecticut. A delegate at the Continental congress, and leader of the Connecticut delegation to the Constitutional Convention of 1787. First president of Columbia (former King's) College (1792-1800).

Johnson, William Samuel (1795-1883) and Samuel William Johnson (1828-1895), father and son, were land office proprietors in Cattaraugus, New York.

Arrangement

Arranged in three series and nine additions: Series I. Correspondence and Business Papers, 1664-1886. Series II. Volumes, 1759-1900. Series III. Folios, 1644-1843.

Collection Contents

Series I: Correspondence and Business Papers, 1664-1886

This series is arranged in three sections: Chronological, Deeds, and Select. Chronological and Deeds are arranged in chronological order.

Series I contains the personal letters, financial papers, and other materials of several Johnson family members and unrelated individuals. Among the earliest Johnson family letters are those of Robert Charles Johnson (1766-1806), which include information on Florida property ventures (circa 1780-1810). Family members frequently maintained a regular and lengthy correspondence with their relatives. William Samuel Johnson (1795-1883) began writing his sister Ann while at Yale College in 1812, and the pair continued to exchange letters for many years. Similarly, William Samuel Johnson corresponded with his father, Samuel William Johnson (1761-1846) from the 1820s through 1846. Other prominent figures in the network of family correspondents include: Laura Woolsey Johnson, wife of William Samuel Johnson, and Samuel Johnson (1696-1772) and William Samuel Johnson (1727-1819). Material in the Chronological section documents the personal thoughts and activities of family members from the 1760s through the 1880s, and also includes much information on the business interests of individuals.

Deeds contain several hundred deeds relating to Johnson family members in Connecticut and elsewhere from 1664-1776.

Select files consist of the correspondence of Samuel Johnson and George Berkeley, 1756-1767, and other papers, 1733-1737. The correspondence of William Livingston (1723-1790) and Noah Welles (1718-1776) is also arranged in this section. Both men were in the Yale College Class of 1741. Livingston served as the first governor of New Jersey and Welles was a Congregational Church minister in Stanford, Connecticut. In letters written from 1742-1768 Livingston addresses Welles as a friend and discusses many events in his personal and professional life.

Series II: Volumes, 1759-1900

This series is arranged in five sections: Johnson, William Samuel; Johnson, Laura Woolsey; Johnson, Robert Charles; Johnson, Susan Edwards; and Johnson family. Each section is arranged alphabetically by record type. The series contains account books, daybooks, journals, letterbooks, and other items for Johnson family members. The bulk of these items are arranged under the name "Johnson, William Samuel" although certain volumes, such as legal notebooks dated 1759 are generally considered those of one William Samuel Johnson (1727-1819), and other material is more likely related to a later William Samuel Johnson (1795-1883). Volumes of Laura Woolsey Johnson, Robert Charles Johnson, Susan Edward Johnson, and other family members are also arranged in this series.

Accession 2003-M-084: Additional materials, 1631-1918

The addition is mostly comprised of correspondence, but includes financial documents, photographs, and books. Approximately ninety percent of the correspondence is letters between Katharine L. Bayard Johnson of Paris, France, and her uncle, William Johnson, and her aunt, Anna Bellamy Johnson of Dorchester, Massachusetts. The letters document family and personal matters, such as health; relationships; and travels in Spain, France, Switzerland, Germany, Austria, Italy and England; as well as Katharine's activities as a freelance artist in Paris. There are also Katharine's notes on Parisian theaters, novelists, salons, and cultural life in general. There are notes by Anna Bellamy on Northeastern United States cultural life. A good portion of the correspondence is devoted to business matters, including management of the Johnson estate, family investments, Katharine's inheritance, and exhibition and sales of her paintings and artwork. [Correspondence between Katharine L. Bayard Johnson and her aunt Anna Bellamy Johnson for the years 1897-1900 is microfilmed and available at the Smithsonian Archives of American Art.]

Accession 2004-M-091: Additional materials, 1788-1907

The addition contains mostly personal papers, correspondence, and photographs of various members and relatives of the Johnson family. The materials are arranged in alphabetical order by family member's last name.

Correspondence comprises the majority of the material in the folders, followed by travel notes and diaries (Charles Frederick and Robert Charles Johnson), and estate management documents (George Hoadley, William Samuel Johnson, Augustus Hillhouse). In addition, almost every folder contains obituary clippings providing biographical information on the individual. One folder at the end of the inventory contains photocopies of photographs of most of the family members represented in this accession.
