Biographical / Historical

ELIAS BREWSTER HILLARD, 1825-1895

ELIAS BREWSTER HILLARD, son of Captain Moses and Martha (Brewster) Hillard, of Preston, Connecticut, was born in that town on September 6, 1825. His father, Moses Hillard, 1780-1837 was a sailor, ship's captain, farmer, and tax collector. During Elias's College course his residence was in Norwich, Connecticut.

After graduation he was for two years principal of the Lewis Academy in Southington, Conn., and a little later entered the Yale Divinity School. In 1852 he removed to the Andover Theological Seminary, where he finished the course in July, 1854. On March 15, 1855, he was ordained as pastor of the Congregational Church in Hadlyme, Connecticut, and on September 10th married Julia, daughter of Judge Frederick Whittlesey (Yale College 1822), of Cleveland, Ohio. He was dismissed from his pastorate on April 15, 1860, and on May 16 was installed over the Congregational Church in Kensington Society, in the township of Berlin, Connecticut. He left this post on March 2, 1867, and was settled two months later over the Congregational Church in South Glastonbury, Connecticut, where he remained until November, 1869. Thence he went to Plymouth, Connecticut, where during a pastorate of twenty years he came into special prominence throughout the State as a leader in movements of temperance reform. His last pastorate (1889-1893) was in Conway, Massachusetts, and the closing months of his life were spent in Farmington, Connecticut, where he died on March 1, 1895, in his 70th year, of heart failure, following pneumonia. His wife survived him, with five daughters and two sons.

Scope and Contents

The Hillard Family Papers consist of letters, business papers, and a journal of Moses Hillard (1780-1837) and members of his family. Moses Hillard's letters and journal vividly document his experiences as a sailor and later a ship's captain from 1799 through the 1820s (they recount such events as the seizure of his ship by French privateers in 1800, harassment by the British before and during the War of 1812, and the sinking of another ship during a storm in 1817), as a farmer, and as collector of school taxes in Preston, Connecticut. For a more detailed discussion of Hillard's life as revealed by his papers, see the attached article by Archibald MacLeish, great-grandson of Moses Hillard.

Other items in the collection include legal and financial papers of Moses Hillard and other family members; there is an agreement between the master and the crew of the schooner Antelope, accounts of sales, bills, freight lists, invoices, port regulations, and other shipping papers, as well as school tax lists and related items. There are, in addition, approximately twenty-five letters from Rev. Elias Brewster Hillard, Moses Hillard's youngest son, to members of his brother William's family. These letters, written during E.B. Hillard's study at Yale and Andover, are accompanied by genealogical notes provided by the Hillard family.
