Biographical / Historical

John Perry Miller, economist and academic administrator, was born in Lynn, Massachusetts, on March 26, 1911. The son of Fred and Hilda Wagner Miller, he was educated at Harvard University, receiving his B.A. in 1932, M.A. in 1934, and Ph.D. in 1937. Dr. Miller joined the Yale faculty as visiting lecturer in economics after teaching briefly at Harvard and Princeton. He was appointed professor of economics in 1950, and served as the director of Social Sciences, one of three major faculty divisions, from 1959 to 1961. Dr. Miller was named dean of the Graduate School in 1961 and held that post until his resignation in 1969.

Dean Miller's tenure saw a number of major changes in graduate education at Yale. He established the joint M.D.-Ph.D. program, as well as the Master of Philosophy degree, the latter of which was the first of its kind in the United States. Dr. Miller also instituted a combined degree program allowing students to receive a Bachelor's and Master's degree in the same course of study. In 1962, Dean Miller served on the faculty committee that recommended admitting women as undergraduates.

Following his resignation as dean of the Graduate School, Dr. Miller was named Director of Yale's Institution for Social and Policy Studies, where he played a major role in the planning and negotiations leading to the establishment of the Yale School of Organization and Management. He resigned his directorship in 1974. During this time, he also led the Campaign for Yale, a capital fund-raising drive aimed at collecting $370 million for the university, as its chief executive officer from 1973 to 1977. Dr. Miller served as deputy provost from 1977 to 1978, then briefly resumed teaching economics before his retirement in 1981.

Dean Miller married Dorothy Marie Willard in 1942, and they had two children, Perry and Ann. He died on February 9, 1997, in Hamden, Connecticut.

Scope and Contents

The papers consist of materials relating to John Perry Miller's career as an economist and academic administrator, including correspondence, clippings, and writings. The bulk of the papers date from 1961 to 1969, during Miller's tenure as the dean of the Yale Graduate School. Although the writings comprise the smallest portion of the collection, they are the most interesting. They include a number of unpublished essays, or "personal statements" by Miller on various topics related to higher education, and to graduate education in particular.

Arrangement

Arranged in three series: I. Personal and Correspondence, 1933-1991. II. Clippings, 1938-1983. III. Writings, 1951-1992.

Collection Contents

Series I: Personal and Correspondence, 1938-1991

Personal and correspondence files consist mostly of John Perry Miller's correspondence with fellow Yale faculty members. There is one folder at the beginning of the series of biographical materials, including Miller's curriculum vitae and his own biographical sketches. The remainder of the series comprises correspondence which is arranged in two sections: topical and individuals. The topical section is arranged alphabetically; the individuals section is arranged alphabetically by last name of correspondent.
