Scope and Contents

The Carroll L. V. Meeks Papers consist of eighteen linear feet of correspondence, research material, photographs, and miscellaneous papers relating to Meeks's career as a Yale professor and historian of architecture. They have been minimally processed and are roughly organized by subject as received from the donor. The following is an outline of the materials: Papers related to Yale buildings and grounds (boxes 1-4); Additional papers related to Yale architecture and to Italian architecture, but less organized (boxes 5-16); Card files containing notes on Italian architecture (boxes 17-26); Mounted photographs of Street Hall, Yale University (box 27, which has been transferred to the Yale Picture Collection); Files containing professional correspondence and miscellaneous papers arranged alphabetically by subject or correspondent (boxes 28-32); Papers related to evaluation of students' work (box 33, which is closed to researchers); Printed articles, primarily in Italian, on art and architecture (box 34, a folio)

Meeks's research material on the architecture of railroad stations, which was in the Slides and Photograph Collection, was transferred to Manuscripts and Archives, SML, in 1991.

Connecticut architecture

This is a file, arranged alphabetically by town name, of student papers on individual buildings throughout Connecticut. Most of the buildings seem to be single family houses, but there are also churches, town halls, taverns, and inns. The period emphasized is colonial, although there are a few 19th century buildings as well. All buildings were standing at the time the papers were written.

New Haven architecture

This is the New Haven section of the Connecticut architecture file but far more extensive in plan. It was compiled as a working file for a projected architectural history of New Haven. The guide was never published in this form, but it was later reworked and published as New Haven: a Guide to Architecture and Urban Design, by Elizabeth Mills Brown in 1976.

Particularly important in this material are photographs of the now destroyed City Hall annex and of the interior of the Davies mansion on Prospect Hill.

The preliminary texts and photographs are grouped in folders roughly by area of New Haven.
