CALL NUMBER: MS 347

CREATOR: Mason, Jeremiah, 1768-1848

TITLE: Jeremiah Mason papers

DATES: 1798-1844

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: 0.25 linear feet (1 box)

LANGUAGE: English

SUMMARY: Correspondence during his terms as Attorney General of New Hampshire (1802-1805), as a senator in the United States Senate (1813-1817), and as a representative in the New Hampshire House of Representatives (1820-1824). The correspondence also reflects his activities in private practice and in local issues, such as the Dartmouth College Case (1818-1819). The correspondence, which is largely political, reflects the issues of the times, among them Aaron Burr's activities, the Tripolitan War, the War of 1812, the presidential elections of 1816 and 1824, the embargo and the tariff. Among the correspondents are Nicholas Biddle, David Daggett, Rufus King, William Plumer, Benjamin Tappan and Bennett Tyler.

Scope and Contents

The Jeremiah Mason Papers span the years 1798-1844. The collection, although small, is an exceedingly rich one for the early years of the nineteenth century.

Family and personal matters are touched upon in the correspondence, but the bulk of the material is concerned with the political scene between 1800 and 1825. Mason's correspondence with people both in and outside of Washington kept him informed of the political climate during the administrations of Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, and James Monroe. Of particular interest are the letters of Nicholas Biddle, President fo the Bank of the United States.

Among the topical subjects mentioned in the papers are Aaron Burr's activities, various bills before the House and Senate, the Tripolitan War, treaties, consummated or otherwise, with Great Britain and Spain, the War of 1812, the presidential elections of 1816 and 1824, the embargo, the tariff, and the Dartmouth College Case.

The Jeremiah Mason Papers were purchased in 1964.
