Scope and Contents

The Theater Manuscripts Collection consists of correspondence, autographs, playbills, theatrical notebooks and several drafts for the WPA Writers Project. The correspondence ranges from such eminent tragedians as Edwin Booth and E.H. Sothorn to such minor comedians as Yankee Robinson and Joe Flynn. While the majority of correspondents are American, a few important letters were written by British and European actors. Of particular interest are Sir James Matthew Barrie's letter to Frederick Harrison enlisting his support in a protest against governmental censorship of plays; several letters by Benjamin Webster and Dame Ellen Terry; Guiseppe Verdi's note to his publisher Ricordi mentioning "La Traviata."

The collection contains the letters of such noted American theater families as the Wallacks and the Chippendales. There are fragmentary records of Edwin Booth's financial dealings and several P.T. Barnum letters appear in the collection. The greater part of the correspondence is composed of notes written by various "vaudevillians" to Albert Emmett Fostell, an old time song and dance man; August Heckler, the editor of a New York dramatic news; or John Holmes, a New Jersey Theater manager. A few letters are addressed to John B. Wright, manager of the Forbes Theater, Washington, at the time of Lincoln's assassination. Most of the letters are from the period 1825 and 1905. However, more contemporary correspondence includes letters from Sherwood Anderson, Frederic March, Dame May Whitty and Monty Woolley. There is a letter from Thornton Wilder concerning the trials of the "Skin of Our Teeth." In a short note, John Galsworthy explains his position on anti-semitism.

The autographs include signatures of Maude Adams, David Belasco, Edwin Booth, John Drew, William Gillette, Joseph Jefferson, Richard Mansfield, Conde Nast, James O'Neill, Adelina Putti, E.H. Sothorn and Otis Skinner.

The Theatrical notebooks in Box 10 are essentially lists of antiquated comedies, tragedies, and melodramas. Along with these items is a copy of an anonymous play, "The Smuggler."

The WPA Writers project is composed almost entirely of notes and background material dealing with the growth of Theater in New Haven. The notes have been condensed into two papers, 1941, entitled "History of the New Haven Theater; 18th Century" (of which there are some ten copies: one typewritten, some manuscript, some incomplete) and "Disputes, Dialogues, and Plays: 18th Century" (one complete). Among the notes are a play 1784 "Dialogue At Oration Day"; a manual of research procedure for investigating New Haven Theater; a history of the Linonian, Brothers in Unity and Calliopean Societies, including the comedies and tragedies acted by these groups; and some pages of notes on Nathan Hale's theatrical propensities.

The value of this collection lies not so much in the few letters of renowned actors, actresses and playwrights as in the consistent picture it gives of Theatrical life in the late 19th century. A life lived in hotels and rented rooms comes vividly alive in such items as Al Fostelle's paen to the boarding house and Joe Flynn's doggerel in praise of the New York Clipper. The sense of the uncertainty and impermanence of a 19th century stage career found in these manuscripts coupled with the unique flavor of "old time" Theater, makes this collection valuable for the Historian of the Theater.
