Biographical / Historical

Christine Pattee was born on October 2, 1941, in Waterbury, Connecticut. Her family moved away from Connecticut while Pattee was still a child. She returned to Connecticut to attend the Yale School of Public Health in 1969. While at Yale she became part of the emerging New Haven Women's Liberation Movement and came out as a lesbian. An activist, she was the first state-wide gay rights lobbyist in Connecticut; instrumental in the passage of the Connecticut Civil Rights Act of 1975. She worked for the Connecticut Health Department. In addition to her activism and political work, she founded the Northeast Women's Musical Retreat (NEWMR).
