SUMMARY: The Betsy Jolas Papers include music, correspondence, writings, teaching materials, programs, clippings, journals, calendars, photographs, sound recordings, awards and other materials by and about the composer Betsy Jolas. The third series contains teaching materials that Jolas used in her lengthy career as a university instructor. The fourth series, Writings (1963-2009), contains similar material, and also includes a "lesson in poetics" given to a young Jolas in 1940 by James Joyce. Series five (1943-2010) consists of programs for concerts, festivals, and award ceremonies, and Series six (1949-2009) contains related publicity materials and press releases. Series seven contains pocket calendars and personal journals; the latter are restricted until the death of Betsy Jolas. Series eight (1926-2006) includes both professional and personal photos of Jolas and others. Series nine is comprised of degrees earned by Jolas, and awards given to her, including the Legion d'Honneur (1996), and the Ordre National du Mérite (2001). Biographical / Historical

The Franco-American composer Betsy Jolas ranks among the most distinguished and influential modern composers. She was born in Paris in 1926. Her American parents, Eugène and Maria Jolas edited Transition, an important literary journal. Betsy Jolas grew up in a literary environment, and from her childhood she was personally acquainted with many prominent writers, including James Joyce. As war came to France in 1940, the Jolas family moved to New York. Betsy studied at the Lycée Français in New York, and then at Bennington College in Vermont. She studied composition with Paul Boepple, piano with Helen Schnabel, and organ with Carl Weinrich. After the war, she returned to France. She married Gabriel Illouz in 1949; they had three children. At the Paris Conservatoire she studied under Darius Milhaud and Olivier Messiaen, the latter of whom she assisted and then succeeded as professor of analysis (1975) and professor of composition (1978). She has spent most of her career in France, but she retains dual citizenship in France and the United States. She has served as a visiting professor at several American universities, including Yale, and she is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters and the American Academy of Arts & Sciences. (She has received many other awards and honors as well.) Jolas has composed numerous instrumental and vocal works in a wide variety of combinations. Her musical style was much influenced by Webern, as well as Boulez and Stockhausen. Her literary background is evident in her exploration of the relationships between words and music. She is the composer of four operas, Le pavillon au bord de la rivière, Le Cyclope, Schliemann, and Iliade l'amour.

Series II: Correspondence, 1937-2010

This series contains letters, cards, and telegrams, and is organized alphabetically. There are two subseries: paper correspondence, and electronic correspondence. The series includes personal and institutional correspondence to and from Betsy Jolas, as well as other correspondence relevant to the name under which it is filed. Institutional correspondence is filed under the name of the institution, unless personal letters to the correspondent exist (in which case, all letters are filed under the name of the correspondent). Individuals of importance are cross-referenced. A few letters are filed by subject (piece title, festival, or award), in order to preserve the original order of the material. Most of the correspondence is in French or English. The series includes personal and artistic correspondence with notable figures from the American and French Avant-Garde, such as Gilbert Amy, Pierre Boulez, Elliott Carter, George Crumb, Henri Dutilleux, Olivier Messiaen, Darius Milhaud, Carol Plantamura, Bernard Rands, and Augusta Read Thomas. This series also features a variety of artists, writers, publishers, critics, academics, administrators, and heads of state. Notable arts institutions from both France and the United States are also represented in the series such as Radio France, Conservatoire National Supérieur de Musique de Paris, IRCAM/Centre Georges Pompidou, and Le Ministère de la Culture (France). Family correspondence is also included in this series.
