Biographical/Historical note

Lady Sydney Morgan (born Sydney Owenson circa 1778 in Dublin, Ireland) was the daughter of the actor Robert Owenson. She was educated at home and at private schools. After serving as a governess she began a writing career, during which she authored numerous works of fiction, including The Wild Irish Girl (1806). The marchioness of Abercorn made Owenson her lady companion, and through Abercorn met and married Sir Thomas Morgan in 1812. She continued writing novels, verse, and works on politics and society. In 1839 she moved to London, where she enjoyed a rich social life. She died in London in 1859.
