CALL NUMBER: YPC

TITLE: Yale Papyrus Collection

DATES: Circa 1570 BCE to 1983

LANGUAGE: Materials chiefly in Greek, Latin, Egyptian Demotic, Coptic, and Arabic, with a small number of items in other languages including Egyptian Hieratic and Hieroglyphic, Hebrew, Pahlavi, Aramaic, and Syriac.

SUMMARY: The Yale Papyrus Collection consists of texts, chiefly on papyrus and chiefly in Greek, Latin, Demotic, Coptic, and Arabic, and includes private letters, official and religious documents, legal deeds and contracts, biblical texts, and literary works by known and unknown authors. The collection began in 1889 with a gift of papyri from W. M. F. Petrie's excavations at Hawara, the archeological site in Ancient Egypt. In the following decades Yale received a number of papyri, many of them from the discoveries at Oxyrhynchus, the ancient city west of the Nile River, by two young British excavators, Bernard Grenfell and Arthur Hunt. Yale's collection continued to grow through purchases in Egypt and in Europe from the 1930s through the 1960s, acquisitions made by Michael Rostovtzeff in the late 1920s and early 1930s, and important gifts from E. J. Beinecke and from H. P. Kraus. Included in the collection but numbered separately are the papyri and parchments from Dura-Europos, a Hellenistic, Parthian, and Roman city on the Euphrates River in southern Syria where extensive remains of civil and military archives were excavated by Yale and the French government in the 1930s.

Administrative Information

Immediate Source of Acquisition

Acquired by gift and purchase, 1889-2005. Acquisition information is recorded in each individual description and on the Library's Web site, here: <https://beinecke.library.yale.edu/research-teaching/doing-research-beinecke/introduction-yale-papyrus-collection/guide-yale-papyrus#Acquisition>

Custodial History

The Yale Papyrus Collection was held by the Yale University Library from 1899 to 1930, when it was moved to the Department of Classics. The collection was transferred from the Department of Classics to the Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library gradually between 1964 and 1967. A group of items including wax tablets and mummy tags (P.CtYBR inv.4971-4985) was transferred from the Yale Peabody Museum of Natural History to the Beinecke Library in 1996.

Conditions Governing Access

The collection is open for research. Please see the Policy on Access and Publication, here: <https://beinecke.library.yale.edu/research-teaching/doing-research-beinecke/introduction-yale-papyrus-collection/beinecke-library>

Some items in the collection have been set aside for conservation, and may not be consulted in the reading room until they have been treated and housed. The majority of these items has been photographed and the images are available for research. Please consult the Access Services department for more information.

Processing Information

The Yale Papyrus Collection has formed gradually over the years since 1889, when it was founded. Many of the acquisitions consisted of unsorted fragments of manuscripts, and almost every item was in need of considerable conservation work. The fragments were inventoried preliminarily as they were acquired. Those which became objects of study were mounted between panes of glass, and some were subjected to various conservation procedures.

The current system of inventory numbers was created in the 1980s, replacing the P. Yale and P. Dura numbers assigned earlier. In the 1990s, the descriptions were contributed to the Advanced Papyrological Information System (APIS) database, a collaboration of several academic institutions and the National Endowment for the Humanities. In 2013-2015, the descriptions were updated to conform to the standard used by papyri.info, and contributed to that aggregated platform. Items acquired between the mid-1990s and 2005 were also inventoried and described at that time. Updates to papyri.info are made periodically.

The original system of inventory numbers ("P.Yale inv.") was unsatisfactory because often it resulted in unrelated fragments being grouped together under a single number, or different numbers being assigned to related fragments. Nor were the occasional conservation procedures that had been applied generally adequate. In 1983, the library undertook a project to re-inventory the papyrus collection and to conserve the manuscripts according to improved conservation techniques. To the extent possible in the circumstances, all the related fragments of each individual manuscript were brought together under a single inventory number, and new inventory numbers were assigned to manuscripts that previously had shared numbers or had no numbers at all. Whenever feasible, the original inventory numbers were carried over into the new system of inventory numbers. Prefixed to this new series of inventory numbers is the designation "P.CtYBR inv.," wherein "P." = Papyrus, "CtYBR" is the Research Libraries Information

Network's designation for the Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library, and "inv." = inventory number; e.g.: P.CtYBR inv. 3. The material excavated at Dura-Europos was assigned a separate inventory number sequence, preceded by DP (Dura papyrus), DPg (Dura parchment), or DPm (Dura object), e.g.: P.CtYBR inv. DP 35.

Since the 1980s the manuscripts have been conserved according to standard procedures and mounted in acrylic frames. In principle, no frame contains more than one manuscript (there are a few exceptions). The frames, grouped in three sizes, are stored individually in protective envelopes. A paper label, bearing the designation "P.CtYBR inv." and the inventory number, is mounted inside each frame. The inventory number alone is written on the edges of the frames, and the upper left-hand corner of the back of each frame is labeled with the inventory number and the word "BACK." A small number of unusual items are stored in different formats.

The majority of manuscripts are mounted in frames 8 x 10 inches (20 x 25 cm) and have no indication of size appended to their inventory numbers. The inventory numbers for manuscripts enclosed in larger size frames (quarter and folio) conclude with the following abbreviated indications of the frame size:

qua: frame size 11 x 14½ inches (28 x 37 cm) fol: frame size 16 x 20 inches (40.5 x 51 cm)

Example: P.CtYBR inv. 1 qua

The designation "P.CtYBR inv." together with the inventory number and any indication of frame size, where applicable, constitutes the call number of a given manuscript. Many manuscripts consist of more than one fragment. If the exact physical relationship of the fragments is known, they have been joined in this relationship by conservation techniques and are regarded as a single fragment. If the exact physical relationship of the fragments is not known, they are labeled in the frame with parenthetical serial numbers to distinguish them: (1), (2), etc. In order to refer to such fragments specifically, the fragment numbers are appended to the inventory number. For example, the two fragments of P.CtYBR inv. 1730 are distinguished as P.CtYBR inv. 1730(1) and P.CtYBR inv. 1730(2).

Whenever feasible, related multiple fragments have been put in a single frame; hence a request for P.CtYBR inv. 1730, for example, will suffice to call both fragments of this manuscript from the stacks, as would a request for just P.CtYBR inv. 1730(1), or just P.CtYBR inv. 1730(2). On occasion, however, it was necessary to put related fragments in more than one frame, in which case each frame is labeled with the inventory number and the fragment numbers contained in that frame. For example, the thirteen fragments of P.CtYBR inv. 400 are mounted in two frames, labeled P.CtYBR inv. 400(1) and P.CtYBR inv. 400(2)-(13), respectively.

For the numerous small fragments of Acq. 1965a and 1992b a special arrangement has been devised. Up to 30 single items of the same period and language have been mounted together on quarto frames and numbered consecutively. They have all received the description "unrelated fragments" in the contents field.

Scope and Contents

The Yale Papyrus Collection consists of texts, chiefly on papyrus and chiefly in Greek, Latin, Demotic, Coptic, and Arabic, and includes private letters, official and religious documents, legal deeds and contracts, biblical texts, and literary works by known and unknown authors. The collection began in 1889 with a gift of papyri from W. M. F. Petrie's excavations at Hawara, the archeological site in Ancient Egypt. In the following decades, Yale received a number of papyri, many of them from the discoveries at Oxyrhynchus, the ancient city west of the Nile River, by two young British excavators, Bernard Grenfell and Arthur Hunt. Yale's collection continued to grow through purchases in Egypt and in Europe from the 1930s through the 1960s, acquisitions made by Michael Rostovtzeff in the late 1920s and early 1930s, and important gifts from E. J. Beinecke and from H. P. Kraus. Included in the collection but numbered separately are the papyri and parchments from Dura-Europos, a Hellenistic, Parthian, and Roman city on the Euphrates River in southern Syria where extensive remains of civil and military archives were excavated by Yale and the French government in the 1930s.

The present catalog consists of entries for each text in the collection. Thus a series of two or more entries may describe the various texts inscribed on a single manuscript. Each entry consists of five or six lines of information, as follows:

- The call number (inventory number) of the text.
- The genre and content of the text.
- The language, date, and place of origin of the text.
- A brief physical description of the text and of the manuscript on which it is inscribed.
- Other numbering systems by which the text can be referred to, miscellaneous remarks, and the year in which the manuscript was acquired.
- Bibliographical references (if any).

The majority of the manuscripts are mounted in acrylic frames. In principle, no frame contains more than one manuscript (there are a few exceptions). A paper label, bearing the designation "P.CtYBR inv." and the inventory number, is mounted inside each frame. When a frame is held so that the paper label inside the frame is in the proper position for reading it, one is looking at the front (side "A") of the manuscript, and at least one text inscribed on the front of the manuscript is oriented properly for reading. The other side of the manuscript is called the back (side "B"). For the purposes of labeling the back and of measuring the dimensions of the manuscript, it is this same orientation of the frame that defines the "top" of the manuscript. A text inscribed on the back of the manuscript is not necessarily oriented properly for reading when the frame is turned over from side to side; nor does side A necessarily correspond to the "recto" in the sense of "the first side to have been inscribed," or "the side to be read first." If a manuscript is inscribed on only one side, this side is framed as A. If a manuscript is inscribed with a text covering both sides, an effort has been made to frame the recto as A. If a manuscript is inscribed with two distinct texts, one on each side, the choice of which side to frame as A and which to frame as B was often arbitrary. If a manuscript is a palimpsest or similarly complicated, it is framed with respect to what seems to be the first text to have been inscribed.

A note on dates

Many items are dated only to the period: Pharaonic (beginning of Egyptian history to 332 BCE [conquest of Egypt by Alexander the Great]); Ptolemaic (332 BCE to 30 BCE [conquest of Egypt by the Romans]); Roman (30 BCE to 300 CE [end of reign of the Roman emperor Diocletian]); Byzantine (300 CE to 641 CE [conquest of Egypt by the Arabs]); Medieval (641 CE to 1798 CE [conquest of Egypt by Napoleon Bonaparte]); Modern (1798 CE to the present).

Arrangement

The finding aid for the Yale Papyrus Collection is arranged chronologically by accession, with the items excavated at Dura-Europos listed at the end. The collection is arranged physically by inventory number and size.

These fragments were stab sewn together secondarily to form a crude notebook. In this notebook, fragment (1)(A) faced (6)(B), (6)(A) faced (3)(B) (upside down), (3)(A) (upside down) faced (2)(B), (2)(A) faced (4)(A), (4)(B) faced (5)(A), (5)(B) faced (7)(A), (7)(B) faced (8)(A) (upside down); but it is uncertain whether the first page of this sequence was meant to be (1)(B) or (8)(B)

The relative positions of fragments (2) and (3) are certain along the vertical axis; the horizontal distance between them is uncertain; (2) changed to (1), preserves the left portion of the contract; to the left margin only 3-5 letters are missing, which can be restored; Former (1) is now (2). The text runs now through over the line jumps. The distance between new (1) and (2) is still uncertain, (2) belongs somewhere in the middle (?). 1042 and 1068 might belong to this papyrus, esp. (2).

Missing.

This manuscript has been missing from the collection since sometime before 1971. Probably it was described in a preliminary inventory of this acquisition (see the file for acquisition 1931c in the "Papyrology File"), but because the numbers used there do not correspond exactly with the P.Yale inv. numbers assigned to this acquisition later, it is not clear which item in the inventory is to be matched with this missing manuscript; the most likely candidate is item 1311 ("6.5 x 10 [cm]. P.CtYBR inv. 1584(A)

A Greek Christian liturgical hymn written on the back of a documentary Coptic text. The Lord is praised in the initial quotation from Ps. 149:1 and in references to the Annunciation, the Nativity, and the Resurrection in a quotation from Ps. 103:2. The hymn ends with a doxology. The format of the Greek text suggests that the papyrus was intended to be used by a singer in a liturgical context. [AG/CG]

P.CtYBR inv. 4995 qua

Verso: Quotations from Book of Jubilees (8:28b-30; 7:14-16; 15:3; 4:33) and Genesis 9:27a|

Recto: Text 1, letter to Father Petre

Coptic

Egyptian\Coptic

1997a

Papyrus

Recto, 28| Verso, 35

All

Recto: 2 texts. (text 1) 25 lines; (text 2) 3 lines.

(B) Text 2 associated with (A), in same hand. The papyrus was first used by the author of the private letter. The letter, presumably sent, received and discarded, was then used by the author of the literary texts; he not only inscribed the blank side of the sheet, but also wrote in between the lines of the documentary text, demarcating his own notes from the preexisting private letter by tracing a line around his text. On the back of the letter (verso) is the exegetical florilegium [AC]

Letter

Byzantine

P.CtYBR inv. 5186 (A-B)

Letter from a large estate context, probably 6th century CE. The writer mentions sending a pronoetes and symmachos to the Oxyrhynchite village of Pthochis. He claims not to have received a response (perhaps to previous letters) and to be in need of an exemption (?????). Letter closes with uncertain reference to a village headman (?????) and a symmachos. The only intact word in frag. B (?????????????) indicates that the letter surely concerns a debt of some sort.

Dura-Europos , circa 300 BCE to 256 CE(Approximately 175 items.)*

Dura-Europos was a city in present-day Syria on the western bank of the Euphrates River. It was founded as Europos in approximately 300 BCE by the Seleucid empire, conquered by the Parthian empire and the Roman empire in the succeeding centuries (when it became known as Dura), and finally fell to the Sasanians in 256 CE. Material excavated at the site shows it to have been a multi-cultural city in its latter period, with evidence of the coexistence of many languages and religious practices.

This acquisition grouping contains parchments and papyri excavated at Dura-Europos (in present-day Syria), that document the history of that city.

The archaeological site at Dura-Europos, Syria, was excavated by Franz Cumont of the Académie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres, France, from 1922-1924 and 1926-1927. In 1928, Yale University joined the project through the efforts of Michael I. Rostovtzeff, Sterling Professor of Ancient History and Classical Archaeology, and continued through the conclusion of the work in 1937. The collaborative Dura-Europos project was overseen initially by French field director Maurice Pillet (1928–1931), then by Clark Hopkins of Yale (1932–1935), and finally by Frank E. Brown, also of Yale (1936–1937). The Yale University Art Gallery acquired a large collection of artifacts from the site, while the papyri and parchments were received originally by Yale's Department of Classics, and were transferred to the Beinecke Library in the 1960s. A small number of parchments from Dura-Europos that were excavated in 1922-1923 are held by the Bibliothèque nationale de France (Inv. DPg 1-9), but the bulk of the documents are at Yale.

The parchments and papyri arrived at Yale throughout the period of excavation. Specific information for some of the items about the date and location of excavation within the site at Dura-Europos and other information about provenance can be found in the published edition of the texts: C. Bradford Welles, Robert O. Fink and J. Frank Gilliam, The excavations at Dura-Europos : final report ; 5, pt. 1. The Parchments and papyri, with an account of the three Iranian fragments by W. B. Henning (New Haven: Yale University Press, 1959).

The Yale University Art Gallery holds a large collection of artifacts from this excavation.

Arranged by inventory number, beginning with papyri (P.CtYBR inv. DP #), followed by parchment (P.CtYBR inv. DPg #) and then by objects (P.CtYBR inv. DPM #).
